

Coping with Stress During Difficult Times with Dr. Nancy Reeves

In order to stay connected with our clients and caregivers while also practicing social distancing we did a special online education session with Dr. Nancy Reeves. In light of the current global COVID-19 pandemic the topic is "Coping with Stress During Difficult Times" for people with acquired brain injury and their caregivers. Dr. Nancy Reeves is a Registered Psychologist who has worked in the area of grief, loss, personal injury, and trauma for over 40 years. Dr. Reeves has worked extensively with people with acquired brain injury and their friends and family.

Click video link below:

nancyworkshop.mp4

 nancyworkshop.mp4

nancyworkshop.jpg

Category:
Presentation Video

Type of Brain Injury:

Brain Tumor
Concussion/MTBI
Stroke/CVA
Traumatic Brain Injury
Other

Tags:

brain injury stress coping stroke anxiety information